the fact that a substantial number of respondents in the study were not employed in the health care sector, and that the study was not designed to assess the impact of the health care sector on the health care sector, it is not surprising that the results of the study are not surprising. The results of the study are not surprising because the study was not designed to assess the impact of the health care sector on the health care sector, and the results of the study are not surprising because the study was not designed to assess the impact of the health care sector on the health care sector.
